

second installation
by Erik Carlson
2010

A microphone is placed outdoors.

A computer is used (max patch available upon request) to broadcast a sine tone at whatever is the dominant frequency being heard by the microphone.

This broadcast can be listened to in a performance space by an audience, or perhaps as a stream online. But it should always be a live broadcast.