

For a large group of musicians.
by Erik Carlson
2015

Everyone breathes normally and independently, humming softly on each exhalation.

The humming should be at a comfortable pitch, which should be varied slightly from breath to breath.

There shouldn't be any effort made to prolong or project the sound.

Sing for as long as desired. At a predetermined signal, everyone should stop within a few seconds.